The Alameda County HCH Program (ACHCHP) is located in the Alameda County Health Care Services Agency serving an urban and suburban population, and provides comprehensive health and support services to homeless people county-wide.

SERVICES

Services include: mobile primary care at 26 shelters and one alcohol/drug recovery center; primary care subcontracts at 10 community clinics and the Alameda County Medical Center; and an array of critical support services including case management, outreach, medical follow-up and referral, respite care, financial benefits counseling, assistance for housing, employment, food, and nutrition, health education, HIV/AIDS counseling, mental health linkages, and transportation. To promote continuity of care and service referrals, the program conducts bi-monthly regional workshops for health and social service providers, homeless coalition members, and others and is a HUD funded Homeless Families Program.

LINKAGES

The ACHCHP has linkages with social service and government organizations and provides access to mental health drop-in centers and emergency shelters. The HCHP participates in the US HUD/SAFAH project to provide transitional housing assistance to homeless persons in search of sober living environments. The program is a HUD supported Homeless Families Program, demonstrating the efficacy of coupling housing with health and support services. In 1991, the ACHCHP was honored by the St. Joseph Health System with the Intensive Care for Our Neighbor [ICON] Award for excellence and innovation in provision of health care to indigent people. ACHCHP is an active participant in the Emergency Services Network of Alameda County, a coalition of over 130 community-based organizations, churches and public services as well as private citizens interested in social and economic development. In 1995, the ACHCHP received the California Public Health Assn. (North) award for outstanding community services. OUTREACH AND PRIMARY HEALTH SERVICES FOR HOMELESS CHILDREN (HCHC)

One of 10 programs that receive HCHC funding, the Center for the Vulnerable Child at Children's Hospital (CVC) is the sole program that does not also receive HCH funding. The goal of CVC is to support the health and well being of children who are homeless or at risk for homelessness, including children who live in biological or foster families and children who have been newly reunified with their parents. This is done by addressing health, psychological, and social problems that frequently accompany poverty. The service area is Alameda County.

SERVICES

Center for the Vulnerable Child is a department with clinical services, research, and policy divisions at a non-profit children's hospital. As a prevention and early intervention program that features coordination of services through case management, CVC provides both a "medical home" and a "one-stop-shopping" model of comprehensive, interdisciplinary services for high risk children and families. Services include comprehensive medical, mental health, developmental, family, and social service assessments, specialist and emergency health care, individual and family counseling, infant/parent psychotherapy, family support groups, therapeutic nursery services, and outreach services.

LINKAGES

CVC has linkages with Alameda County Social Services, Jobs Consortium, Oakland Ready to Learn, Head Start, Center for Employment and Training, San Leandro Shelter for Women and Children, Homeplace, Catholic Charities Housing Assn. Corp. of East Bay, Shelter Plus Care, Alameda County HCH, Henry Robinson Multi-Service Center, Kerry's Kids, and Volunteers of America Boothe Family Transitional Shelter.

Clinica Sierra Vista's Homeless Health Care is a community health center-based program serving clients throughout the 8,000 square miles of Kern County, which is located in California's Central San Joaquin Valley. The program operates a clinic in the city of Bakersfield and a 42-foot mobile unit that travels to sites throughout the county. The program also includes a 12-bed medical respite unit.

SERVICES

Primary and preventive health care and social services are provided on-site. Dental, laboratory, and radiology services are available at other Clinica facilities. Four full-time employees are supported by a large cadre of volunteers, including physicians from a local teaching hospital, who provide medical care at either the Homeless Clinic or at regularly scheduled mobile unit sites such as emergency shelters, low income motels, farm labor camps, schools located in economically depressed neighborhoods, and homeless encampments. The mobile unit is also used for HIV and tuberculosis screening programs, immunization clinics, WIC enrollment, and community events such as fairs and festivals promoting healthy lifestyles through health education. Clinica's respite project provides short-term care to homeless adults too ill to manage on the streets or in shelters. The 12 bed program located adjacent to the Homeless Clinic operates at its capacity of 12 clients who receive medical, nursing, and social service assistance with benefits application, housing placement, enrollment in addiction and mental health treatment programs, and other ongoing assistance.

The Sacramento County DHHS/Primary Health Services is a division with the County's Department of Health and Human Services. The HCH program provides access to primary and public health service locations for individuals without permanent nighttime residence.

SERVICES

The Sacramento County HCH program operates in collaboration with nonprofit health services and resource programs, including Mercy HealthCare of Sacramento, Loaves and Fishes, UC Davis Medical School, and many homeless shelter and program sites. Primary and public health services, health education, and specialty referral resources are provided.

Mercy HealthCare of Sacramento and Loaves and Fishes assure access to primary health care. Through this collaborative, the County provides a full-time physician, pharmaceuticals, and utilization of the County patient care database. Mercy provides nursing and clerical support, and Loaves and Fishes provides the clinic site and maintenance. Primary care includes acute care, chronic disease management referrals, public health assessment and treatment, health education, and referrals for dental, vision, and mental health treatment.

A public health nurse and a registered nurse provide outreach services. The PHN coordinates two Well Child Clinic sites with the assistance of UCD 3rd year pediatric residents and a family nurse practitioner. These clinics provide CHDP exams, WIC referrals, and immunizations. In addition, the PHN visits adult and family shelter sites and provides health education workshops and triage assessment for individuals with acute or chronic health concerns. The outreach nurse provides TB screening and testing at one of the largest homeless shelter service areas. Clients are issued TB clearance photo ID cards that are valid for six months. The nurse also provides testing in outlying shelters throughout the county.

The Health Care for the Homeless Project serves homeless people in San Mateo County.

SERVICES

The Homeless Adults and Families Health Care for the Homeless Program provides outreach and case management to homeless adults and families. The HCH Program combines four intervention strategies designed to reach and help homeless adults and families access services. These include San Mateo County Health Services Agency's continuum of health care, mental health, substance abuse, and other support services. Outreach is conducted through community workers and healthcare professionals assigned to a mobile van. Staff provide health education, basic medical care, screening, and referral for primary care, social services, and case management.

LINKAGES

The project has linkages with over 30 public and private agencies that serve the homeless in San Mateo County.

OUTREACH AND PRIMARY HEALTH SERVICES FOR HOMELESS CHILDREN (HCHC)

One of 10 programs that receive HCHC funding, the San Mateo County HCH project includes two service components. The Homeless Teen Health Care Team (HTHCT) links outreach/education, primary care, and case management services through two youth health centers - Redwood City Youth Health Center (RCYHC) and Daly City Youth Health Center (DCYHC). These sites also provide drop-in services, peer education, culturally focused and gender-specific outreach, and health education to homeless and runaway youth. Youth and Family Assistance, a non-profit agency which operates RCYHC, provides the HTHCT services through a subcontract. The county-wide outreach/education and case management services link homeless adults and families to primary care and social services. San Mateo County Health Services' network of nine community clinics has service linkages with schools, health providers, and mental health and substance abuse services. This clinic network provides services to underserved areas and helps homeless adults, families, and youth access San Mateo County Health Services' continuum of care.
